Description :

Prsentation de l'diteur'A comfortable chair and a Mary Stewart: total heaven. I'd rather read her than most other authors.' Harriet EvansAshley Court: the tumbledown ancestral home of the Ashley family, all blessed with 'the gift' of being able to speak to each other without words. When Bryony Ashley's father dies under mysterious circumstances, his final words a cryptic warning to her, Bryony returns from abroad to uncover Ashley Court's secrets. What did her father's message mean? What lies at the centre of the overgrown maze in the gardens? And who is trying to prevent Bryony from discovering the truth?Tell Bryony. The cat, it's in the cat on the pavement. The map. The letter. In the brook. Tell Bryony. My little Bryony to be careful. Danger.Revue de presseAnother excellent, gripping novel . . . unfolds a strange tale of disappearing relatives traced through thought patterns all spiced up with love and violence. (Colchester Evening Gazette) Another winner for Mary Stewart and her heroines (Evening Standard) From opening to finale, this zestful romantic adventure grips, amuses, frightens and delights (Sunday Telegraph) When it comes to writing racy and intelligent thinkers then Mary Stewart challenges the dominance of those mere males Alistair Maclean and Desmond Bagley. And her latest bestseller . . . should have her many fans purring with delight. (Peterborough Evening Telegraph) Superb . . . Her characters have depth. Her villains are satisfyingly violent but her lovers are tender. She writes with rare economy and elegance. (Daily Mail) History mingles with mystery in this story which fast becomes compulsive reading. (Birmingham Evening Mail) It'll keep you guessing to the end. (Sunday Post, Glasgow) One of Mary Stewart's best - so good that even if it rains, you will still enjoy your holiday! (Daily Mail) Mary Stewart is magic (The New York Times) Presentation de l'diteur' A comfortable chair and a Mary Stewart: total heaven. I'd rather read her than most other authors.'
